A Word to the People.

The contest for Governor in this State is over. The period for sensational rumors has passed, and all real causes for excitement' growing out of the election have died away.

We believe that it is now generally conceded, that a majority of the voters of the State who have exercised that right at the election, have chosen that upright and incorruptible statesman and patriot, Jonathan Worth, to be the first civil Governor, after the tumult which has swept over the country for the last four or five years. His quiet, peace-loving and Union-loving character, point him out as the most fit representative of the peace-loving and Union-loving people of the State. No man among us is better fitted to inaugurate the era of peace, than he is.

The President of the United States and the people of the North, can find no better man—one whose views and character can make them feel safer—can give better evidence of the purpose of our people to pursue the ends of peace in future, than Jonathan Worth. And yet our own people could wish for none more rigid or scrupulous, in contending for the rights and the interests of the State. Certainly the election of Jonathan Worth to the office of Governor in this State, ought to satisfy all, of the fidelity of our people to the Union and to the magnanimous policy of President Johnson.

Taking this view of our present condition, we owe it to ourselves and to the people, to guard them against the dismal croakings, which have been put forth by the friends of Gov. Holden since they have been forced to admit his defeat. For several days, parties known to be friends of his, have been laboring to produce the impression, that the election of Mr. Worth is viewed at Washington and in the North, with regret and dissatisfaction. Our people have been told that we may look for the long continuance of military rule among us. Late dispatches to Govs. Sharkey, Perry and Holden, are pointed to as premonitions of danger, and this is attempted to be palmed off upon the people as the fruits of Gov. Holden's defeat.

We take it upon ourself to declare, guided only by a little common sense, that the defeat of Gov. Holden has nothing to do with it. Had he been elected civil Governor, the necessity for the course determined upon by the President would have existed, and the same course would have been pursued.

The recent orders to Govs. Sharkey, Perry and Holden, seem to have grown out of the fact, that neither Mississippi, South Carolina nor North Carolina have yet fully complied with what President Johnson now considers, essential to their restoration to the Union. Until this is done, he will hold them under military rule, and of course the Provisional Governments will be continued. This is what the South has expected. It is possible however, that the recent elections at the North may somewhat affect our prospects, and may require the imposition of more rigid terms, than the President was at first disposed to impose.

Let the people be calm and hopeful. Those who have with but little ground, expected an adjustment of our difficulties at an early day, may be doomed to disappointment. We have not indulged such strong hopes that the task of re adjustment would be accomplished in a day. Our conqueror has the power to impose what terms he may choose. Our surrender was unconditional. But let us still rely upon the magnanimity of the President and the sober sense of those who rule the nation. Let us do our duty to the government, but let us not be craven hearted or timid, but maintain that manly, honest, dignified course which becomes true men.

The State Convention.

This body was an intelligent one, a patriotic one,—no member being hostile to the Federal government, and all the friends of the magnanimous policy of President Johnson, except perhaps, a few of the hard fisted, illiberal "strait sect" men. The body possessed, doubtless, sufficient fear of the powers of the common government, and respect for its authority, to do all that might be required of it, necessary for the full restoration of the State to the Union. The people elected them for that purpose. They expected nothing less of them than the adoption of what ever was declared by the government necessary to effect this object. The people did not expect them to go beyond this mark—to stultify or lower the dignity of the State—to get down upon their knees in order to "harmonize," lower than was specially required.

With its intelligence, and with this only object in view, the Convention ought to have acted with more discretion and foresight. No man on the floor, seemed to know precisely the terms which the government required. Gov. Holden was called upon to day before the body, his views of its duty, but he was disposed to leave its action to the wisdom of the Convention.

The Convention had met for a special purpose. The people had sent their delegates to do all that was demanded by the government in order to accomplish that purpose. Hence at the very outset, it ought to have demanded the programme of the government fully and explicitly, in order to intelligent and prompt action. If this had been done, it would have saved the Convention the humiliation of doing and then undoing what it had done.

Moreover, the Convention should not have forced upon the people so heavy an election at once in so short a period. The election of County officers and the ratification of the ordinances, should not have been on the same day with the other elections. The people were thus called upon to do what they neither had the time or inclination to do, in one day. The consequence is, that the vote is not only a small one, but in regard to the ordinances, is unsatisfactory. Few could see the necessity of submitting them to the people, after they had been declared essential to reconstruction—the very object for which the Convention was called.

Neglect of the Press.

We observe that some of the presses are disposed to attach blame to the people, on account of the meagre vote which has been cast for the ratification of the ordinances passed by the Convention. Perhaps the Convention may be blamed for submitting them to the people at all, under the circumstances. But if there was a propriety in submitting them to the people, the press is certainly justly chargable for neglecting to advise the people fully in regard to the matter.—Thousands went to the polls without knowing that they were to vote upon them. The bustle of the occasion was no fit time to make up one's mind and hence many determined to assume no responsibility in voting. What perhaps disturbs some persons most is, that any one should dare to vote against them, after taking the oath of amnesty. An election supposes a choice—the exercise of an unbiased opinion. If the Convention intended that every one should vote for the ratification, it ought to have omitted the farce of an election, and if the voting against the ratification subjects them to the charge of violating their oath; or argues infidelity to the government, the Convention should not have placed them in that position. In either case, the action of the Convention was improper.

Despatch from the President to the Governor of Georgia.

The following is the dispatch sent by President Johnson to the Governor of Georgia:

Executive Mansion,
Washington, D. C., Oct. 28, 1865.

To James Johnson, Provisional Governor, Milledgeville, Georgia:

Your despatch has been received. The people of Georgia should not hesitate one single moment in repudiating every single dollar of debt created for aiding the rebellion against the government of the United States. It will not do to levy and collect taxes from a State and people that are loyal and in the Union, to pay a debt that was created to aid in taking them out, and thereby subverting the constitution of the United States.

I do not believe the great mass of the people of the State of Georgia, when left uninfluenced, will submit to the payment of a debt which was the main cause of bringing on their past and present suffering—the result of the rebellion.

Those who invested their capital in the creation of this debt must meet their fate and take it as one of the inevitable results of the rebellion, though it may seem hard to them. It should at once be made known, at home and abroad, that no debt contracted for the purpose of dissolving the Union can, or ever will, be paid by taxes levied on the people for such purpose.

ANDREW JOHNSON,
President of the United States.

The Georgia Convention on the 7th inst., repudiated the war debt by a vote of 133 to 117.

The Charlottesville Chronicle, of the 7th, says: "The North Mountain deerhunters returned from their hunt yesterday. In consequence of the rainy weather, they hunted only three days, in which time they secured eighteen deer."

Address from Bishops Atkinson, Lay and Quintard.

To our Brethren in the Southern Diocese:

In resuming our seats in the General Convention of the Church of the United States, we have taken a step in advance of those with whom we have been for some years associated. We were aware that we ventured much; but we were prepared to venture much in order to secure the reunion of the Church, and to obviate the evils which were likely to grow up in the absence of frank and personal conference.

It seems proper that we should not make known to you what has happened during this memorable session.

We demanded no formal guarantees. The assembled Bishops offered us no pledge save that of "their honor and love." As a house and as individuals avoidance of what might give us pain.—Painful things were sometimes spoken, but even then the speakers used studied moderation and self restraint.

The results arrived at are as follows:

Bishop Lay, although he held that the erection of Arkansas into a diocese, and his election as diocesan, were valid acts, preferred to waive that question. By the calamities of war, the Church in that State has been so enfeebled that it is no longer able to exhibit an organization. He therefore answered to his name, and was received by the House as Missionary Bishop of the Southwest.

In the matter of Bishop Wilmer, no official documents were before the Convention, and the case was complicated by an unhappy conflict between the military and the ecclesiastical authorities in the State of Alabama. And yet, after an elaborate discussion, his consecration was ratified on conditions not liable to objection unanimously in the House of Bishops, and with only one negative vote in the House of Deputies, which vote was subsequently withdrawn.

The Bishop elect of Tennessee was accepted with great unanimity and consecrated without delay to his high office.

In celebrating a thanksgiving, the Convention abstained from disputed topics, and confined its expressions of gratitude to the mercies which we recognize in common, viz: peace in the country and unity in the church.

In devising means to provide relief for sufferers of the South, the action of the church was marked by sympathy and delicacy.

In establishing a system for the instruction of the freedmen, our advice was sought, and Episcopal authority duly respected.

In general while the bishops and other members of the convention, have in no wise denied or concealed their sentiments on the questions political and social brought by the war to a practical solution, they have not required of us any expression of opinion on these topics. They have carefully discriminated between the political and the ecclesiastical aspects of these questions, and have confined their expressed judgments and their action to the latter. They are content with the assurance that we render for conscience sake allegiance, honest and sincere to the government of the United States, and will teach others to do so.

We see nothing now to hinder the renewal of the relations formerly existing in the Church.

We feel bound to acknowledge that we have been greatly indebted to many of the Bishops for the warm fraternal feeling manifested by them, and for their generous exposure of themselves to censure because of their efforts to promote peace and unity, nor ought we to withhold our conviction that the great body of the House of Deputies have deserved well of the Church, because of the manliness with which they have encountered reproach, and perhaps subjected themselves to suffering in the cause of peace and holy moderation.

From the Mobile Times, Oct. 24th 1865.

The Pardoning Process.

One most interesting anecdote, witnessed by our informant, will show in what light the President views the men cowardly enough to foreswear their past:

At one of the last receptions held by the President for the purpose of inquiring into every case of pardon, two men presented themselves, who, under the twenty thousand dollar clause, were applying for relief. One was a young man, not over twenty-five years, bearing on his shattered frame the evidences of many a hard fought field. The other, older, but still hale and powerful—Both from the same State. To the first, the President asked how so young, he came to join the rebellion. He replied, he had done it from honest and sincere principles, and could not, under any circumstances, say that he repented or regretted it. The President then inquired how long he had served, where and how often he had been wounded. The youth replied, modestly but frankly, pointing to his scars, "Well, well," replied the President, "I see you have had enough of this," and instantly ordered the pardon to be granted. Then turning to the other, he listened patiently to a long story of ardent, but concealed, Union feelings, and repeated assurances of past, present and future devotion. When the party had made out his case the President sternly inquired of him in what regiment of the Union army he had fought, and on receiving for an answer that he had never joined any, he coldly replied:—"I will take your case under advisement."

So favorable are, in short, all the reports which reach us of the President's intelligent policy and noble heart, that the gloom which radicalism is attempting to throw over the prospects of reconstruction is rapidly dispelled under the genial sun of his liberality.

The Late Murder.

R. J. Brock, who had been previously discharged by the jury of inquest, in the Cornell murder case, was re-arrested on Monday night, together with Screen Kelly, [colored] and committed to jail. Laura Carr, [colored] and a negro soldier, whose name we could not learn, were also arrested yesterday. Laura Carr was committed to jail, and the negro soldier was turned over to the Provost Marshal, who lodged him in the military prison. The preliminary examination of the accused parties, will take place before Justice Conolly to-day at 10 o'clock.

The murder of Cornell is one of the most horrid deeds of blood ever perpetrated in our community. He was murdered in cold blood, for a sum of money that must have been exceedingly small, and it is to be hoped that the guilty parties may receive that punishment they so richly merit.—*Wil. Washington, Nov. 10.

The Secretary of State to day telegraphed Gov. Perry to continue to exercise the functions of his office in South Carolina until relieved by the President's order. He says the President regrets that neither the Convention nor Legislature has repudiated the war debt, and that South Carolina seems to decline the Congressional amendment to the federal Constitution abolishing slavery. Yesterday Secretary Seward telegraphed Gov. Perry, for the President, that an early adoption of the amendment is deemed peculiarly important, and especially desirable with reference to the general situation of the Union. The President's opinion, before expressed, remains unchanged.

To-day members of the late North Carolina Convention and other gentlemen from that State, visited the President. Hon. E. G. Reade in behalf of the Convention, told the President what the Convention had done, including the declaring null and void the ordinance of secession, the passage of the ordinance prohibiting slavery, and the repudiation of the debt contracted in aid of the rebellion; that the Convention asks Congress to repeal the test oath and that it was thought that this request should pass through the President's hands, with the hope that his magnanimity would aid it with some reflections which would avail with Congress. The President, in a reciprocating, conciliatory spirit, said North Carolina had done much, yet it remains to render restoration practicable, that she accept the Congressional anti slavery amendment to the Constitution, and as practically important to successful restoration so much desired. The action must depend upon events, and that Governor Holden will again be instructed to continue to exercise his functions as Governor until relieved by orders to that effect.

It is more apparent than ever, that this intention is strengthened by different acts on the part of the Mexican Cabinet. In conclusion, we desire to record our deep conviction and our reverend acknowledgment, that the results now related are the doing not of man, but of God. North Carolina State Convention.

[Concluded]

M. E. MANLY.

Judge Manly, of Craven, is a native of Chatham county, and graduated at the State University in 1824, in the class with Gov. Graham, dividing with him and two others the first distinction. He entered public life as a member of the House of Commons in 1834, from the town of New-Berne, and was the last representative of that ancient borough, as the Convention of 1835 abolished borough representation.

He was elected a Judge of the Superior Court in 1840, and transferred to the Supreme Court in 1859, which position he filled with ability and honor, until the office, with all the others in the State, was declared to be vacated by an ordinance of this Convention. Judge Manly was a State-Rights Democrat.

NATHANIEL BOYDEN.

Hon. Nathaniel Boyden, of Rowan, is nearly seventy years of age, and a native of Massachusetts. He removed to North Carolina in 1822, and represented Stokes county in the House of Commons in 1838 and '40. In 1844 he represented Rowan in the Senate, and in 1847 was elected to Congress.

He has represented Rowan since in the Legislature, and is at present the President of the North Carolina Railroad.

Mr. Boyden is regarded as one of the extreme men of the Convention. He has a fine flow of language and speaks with much ease He was Chairman of the Committee which presented the anti-Secession ordinance passed by the Convention. In politics, he has always been a Whig and a Union man.

WM. A. WRIGHT.

Wm. A. Wright, Esq., of New Hanover, while but seldom on his feet, is one of the most useful members of the Convention, as he undoubtedly is one of the ablest. He is at the head of the Finance Committee, and occupied prominent positions on several of the most important committees of the body. He is the leading lawyer of the Cape Fear region, and although advanced in life, this is his first political experience. His habits and style of oratory are more suited to the court room than the hustings or political halls.

Mr. Wright is the President of the Bank of Cape Fear. In politics he was a Whig.

SAMUEL F. PHILLIPS.

Samuel F. Phillips, Esq., of Orange, though comparatively a young man, is one of the ablest members of the Convention. He graduated at the University of North Carolina in 1841, and has ever since resided at Chapel Hill, the seat of that Institution, engaged in the practice of the law.—He has frequently represented Orange county in the Legislature, and was a member of the Board of Claims, established early in the war, associated thereon with B. F. Moore and P. H. Winston, Esqs., both members of the present Convention. He was subsequently appointed Auditor of the State.

Mr. Phillips is one of the ablest dialecticians and clearest thinkers of the body, and while he is gifted with but a small share of eloquence, is probably the most forcible and impressive speaker in the Convention—commands the most marked attention, and probable the greatest influence. He is at the head of one of the important committees. He was a Whig and Unionist.

ALFRED DOCKERY.

Hon. Alfred Dockery, of Richmond, is a portly, fine looking gentleman, something under seventy, of great legislative experience and sound practical judgment, and is justly regarded as one of the most popular "stump speakers" in the State. He entered public life as a member of the House of Commons in 1822, and afterwards served for five consecutive sessions in the Senate, until elected to Congress in 1845. He was elected again in 1851. In 1856 he was the Whig candidate for Governor, but shared the fate of his party in that election, having been defeated by Gov. Bragg—He frequently occupies the floor, but never long, and is always listened to with marked attention. As previously stated, he was a member of the constitutional Convention of 1835.

WM. EATON, JR.

Wm. Eaton, jr., Esq., of Warren, is one of the most eloquent and impressive speakers of the Convention, and, by his dignified and consistent course, is deservedly one of the most popular members of the body. He entered public life in 1838, as a member of the House of Commons.—He succeeded Mr Moore as Attorney General, in which office he made much reputation. He is the author of a legal work of great popularity and much benefit to the bar of the State.

Mr. Eaton is a grandson of Nathaniel Macon, and in politics was an Union Democrat.

GEORGE HOWARD.

Judge Howard, of Edgecombe, is a young man of fine personal appearance and address, and of a high order of intellect. He speaks with much ease and force, and though acting with a small minority, he always commands considerate attention. He was a member of the Convention of 1861, his first appearance in political life, in which body he was, as he is in this, the Chairman of the Military Committee, in both a position of great responsibility, in this a delicate trust, so complicated and jealous are the relations of the civil and military authorities. He was elected a Judge of the Superior Court in 1859, in which capacity he served with great credit and acceptability, until the passage of the recent ordinance, declaring such offices vacant. Judge Howard was a State Rights Democrat.

D. D. FEREBEE

Col. D. D. Ferebee, of Camden, is one of the finest speakers of the Convention. His effort in favor of the substitute offered by himself to the ordinance of the Committee declaring null and void the Ordinance of Secession, is regarded as probably the most finished and eloquent speech of the session. The very liberal and patriotic stand taken by him on that occasion, in connection with a life-long devotion to the Union, as evinced by his entire political record, a self-sacrificing love for the honor and welfare of North Carolina, as displayed by the zeal with which he rushed to the conflict when his State called her sons to arms, the gallantry and perseverance with which he shared her destinies; and the soul which animated him on the field of battle and in the halls of legislation, to manifest the spirit of the true soldier and statesman, combined to make him one of the marked men of the Convention.

Col. Ferebee graduated at the State University in 1839. He never missed a duty during the four years of college life, and it was said of him by one of the Faculty, (Professor Green, now the beloved Bishop of the Diocese of Mississippi) that "he was more regular than the college bell." The same system and regularity which marked his collegiate course, has characterized his manhood. He entered public life as a member of the House of Commons in 1846, and has repeatedly represented his county in that body. With the exception of the Conventions of 1861 and '65, he has filled no other political position. He was Colonel of the 5th North Carolina Cavalry, and served throughout the war, with distinguished ability and gallantry.

The feelings which prompted him to sheath his sword only at the close of a long and bloody contest, and then with no dishonor—a contest in which he had no agency in giving vitality to—made him the peculiar and proper champion "to protect and defend the good name and motives of the patriotic dead," from the uncharitable hand of extreme legislation. Col. Ferebee was a Union Whig

EDWARD CONIGLAND.

Edward Conigland, Esq., of Halifax, made his first appearance on the political stage in the present Convention, and by his very able efforts in opposition to the repudiation of the war debt, and in defence of the judiciary, placed him at once among its acknowledged leaders. The first has been published at the solicitation of a committee of the Convention, and it is to be hoped that the latter will also be given to the public.

He is a successful and able lawyer, and notwithstanding an unfortunate deafness, is one of the most useful members of the Convention. He speaks with much fluency and force.

Mr. Conigland was on the floor, in the midst of his powerful argument on the status of the judiciary, when the famous telegram of the President was announced, which caused the Convention to repudiate the War Debt. His remarks on resuming, were characteristic of the man, and displayed the spirit of the true representative.—"I shall continue, Mr. President," said he, "to oppose and discuss the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wake, (Mr Moore) so long as it is proper, by parliamentary usage to do so. If, indeed, it should be authoritatively announced that we will not be allowed to continue or restore the Judges, then the poor privilege will be mine of remaining quiet; but I will never vote to perpetuate an injustice. My body may be subject to others—my conscience is my own—no power on earth can direct or control it."

Mr. Conigland was an Union Democrat.

JOHN POOL.

John Pool, Esq., of Bertie, is one of the most logical debaters and closest reasoners of the Convention. He seldom occupies the floor, and then only on the more important subjects which come up for consideration. The influence he might exercise, is paralyzed by the extreme and illiberal spirit he manifests. It is to be regretted that both the delegates from Bertie, occupying the prominent position they do, should evince a disposition of proscription towards the great body of their fellow-citizens who engaged in the late war, especially as their own skirts are not very free. The same remarks may well apply to the talented delegates from Beaufort.

GEORGE W. BROOKS.

Judge Brooks, of Pasquotank, is one of those gentlemen who has risen to prominence by the events of this war, by an incident, peculiar, it is supposed, to few, very few North Carolinians, of any standing. He is a lawyer of respectable talents, and has been appointed United States District Judge, upon the ground that he is able to take the oath of office. The position has been offered to two or three more distinguished lawyers of the State, but they were unable to take the required oath. Judge Brooks was also tendered a Judgeship by Gov. Holden.

A native citizen of the State, reared to the age of manhood among the people of North Carolina, who can, after four years of mortal combat, solemnly swear that he never aided, encouraged or countenanced his struggling fellow-citizens, can, at least, administer even handed justice among them, unmoved by local feelings or domestic influences.

Other distinguished gentlemen deserve to be mentioned, but this article is already too much extended.

It is a noticeable fact, that those delegates to whom report has "carved out" the numerous offices of profit and trust within the gift of the next Legislature, are those who represent the most illiberal views in the Convention.

Such can hardly be the sentiments and feelings of a people, over ninety thousand of whom voluntarily rushed to arms. Honor is yet native to North Carolina. "It knows no clime more congenial. Within her borders, its growth is healthful and strong. Her people cannot yet be obvious to the memory of the gallant dead, who shed their blood in defence of her honor." It is to be hoped that the "sober, second thought" of the people will curb this fanatical spirit, and consign to private life the leaders who encourage and sustain it. Guy.

FACTS TO BE CONSIDERED.

THERE ARE BUT FEW SUBJECTS PRESENTED to the mind of man upon which there are not a great variety of opinions, and about which there are not protracted discussions. But there are a few facts so well established, and so uncontrovertible that they are universally assented to. One is that all men now living, will soon be called upon to gather up their feet and depart to the land of the dead. "One generation goeth, and another cometh, and we have no abiding city here," is a matter about which there is no dispute. Another is, "Of that day, and of that hour, knoweth no man." Whether death cometh at the twelfth hour or at the cock crowing, is of equal uncertainty to all.

Another is, that when wife and children gather around us, to take their final leave, in that sad circle centers all our earthly interest. The last earthly rational thought of Husband and Father, is Wife and Children (if worthy of sustaining such endearing relations.) Another is, no man living knows what may be the result of his efforts to secure a competence for his family. "Riches take to themselves wings and fly away," has been realized by how many? adverse winds of to-morrow, may take the place of to-day's prosperous gales; under currents which the most penetrating eye cannot see, or the strongest arm control, may in an evil hour sweep away the hard earnings of years. Another is, no man ever has, or ever can assume more sacred obligations, than Husband and Father. Hence it is said, that he that will not provide for his own household is worse than an infidel.

Now, what Husband and Father is there battling with the difficulties of life, knowing as he must, that uncertainties attend every effort, and wait upon every enterprise, that he has not with earnest voice, and anxious heart, called to the future to unlock its barred gates and reveal to him the result of this or that undertaking. But the only voice that comes from that land of silence, is, "Verily, thou knowest not what shall be on the morrow."

Such are some of the few facts about which there is no controversy, and such are some of the uncertainties that ever have, and ever will gather around our pathway through life, and which have in generations past, and will in generations to come trouble and oppress the Husband and Father. Now in view of these facts, responsibilities, and uncertainties, it is for you to judge and decide upon the propriety, necessity, and duty, of making a policy on your life, for the benefit of your family. Will it not relieve you of your present anxiety to know that a certain portion of the fruits of you labors are secured to that family? Remember that whatever you pay for a life policy is paid to them. The stranger intermeddleth not with that.

Remember also, that $5000 paid to them in that day when the heart and flesh shall fail you, will be more to them, than $10,000 while you are here to provide for them Also remember, that the amount for which you are insured will not be diminished in the settling of your estate, and that from generation to generation. Life Insurance has answered the end for which is was ordained, as fully, to say to the least, as any institution of man's creation, and that its primary object was, and still is, to secure the family against the stern realities of want, and to relieve from corroding anxiety those who have assumed family responsibilities.

Do you say "I know it would be wise in me to take out a policy and I intend to do so soon; but just now I want to use all my funds in my business."—Friend, if it is wisdom in you to ins re at all, it is folly to defer it, to-morrow is to eternity, therefore "Boast not thyself of to morrow," "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." "Procrastination is the thief of time."

The Aetna Life Insurance Company offers you all the inducements to insure that can be found in any company. Its assets are over a million and a half It has a surplus of $300,000 over and above what is required to reinsure all its policies. Its monthly receipts are over $150,000. And it is issuing monthly nearly 1000 policies. Its rates for insurance are as reasonable as those of any other well established responsible Company. It is paying as large dividends to its policy holders as any other Company. Its officers are competent business men. Its assets, are as permanently and as safely invested as any other company can invest theirs, and from which as good interest is being received. It pays its losses as promptly, is as particular in the character of its risks, and as yet it is a stranger to litigation.

LOUISBURG

FEMALE COLLEGE.

REV. T. M. JONES, A. M., Pres't and Proprietor.

THE EXERCISES OF THIS INSTITUTION will begin on the second Wednesday in January 1866.

Louisburg is a village seldom surpassed for health intelligence, refinement and morality. It is in Franklin County, nine miles from Franklinton, on the R. and Gaston Railroad. Between these points there is a daily stage line, connecting with trains going North and South.

The College building, located in a beautiful grove, on an elevated site, is large, commodious and well ventilated. It will be thoroughly renovated and fitted up with neat furniture and fire places in the dormitories. It is our purpose to establish for young ladies a school of the highest grade, affording superior facilities for the acquisition of a thorough and accomplished education.

With the advantages of a good library, a well selected Chemical and Philosophical apparatus, a competent Faculty, and large experience in connection with the Greensboro Female College, we hope, by a faithful discharge of duty, to merit a liberal share of patronage. Boarding pupils will live as members of the President's family. Terms reasonable, and will be made known in due time. Those desiring to send their daughters, will please address me, for the present, at Greensboro,' N. C., and circulars will be sent.
